

Commemorating the Centenary of the Strait of Messina Earthquake at the Italian Academy

Marina Melchionda (November 19, 2008)

Sempre lungo le banchine del porto piene di rovine e di macerie, alcuni soldati hanno appena appoggiato il corpo di una vittima, in attesa del trasferimento su una delle navi di soccorso.

On 11/20, "One Hundred Years After the Strait of Messina Earthquake: Emergency Management from Solidarity to Efficiency"

The Italian Academy at Columbia University will host the symposium "One Hundred Years After the Strait of Messina Earthquake: Emergency Management from Solidarity to Efficiency - the Response of Public Institutions to the Strategic Challenge of Emergency Management" on November 20th. The event, starting at 8:45 am, is organized by the Italian Consulate General in New York in collaboration with the Italian Cultural Institute, the Italian Academy, the Regional Council of the Region of Calabria, the Region of Sicily, the City of Messina and the Regional Delegation of ANFE (Associazione Nazionale Famiglie Emigranti/ National Association of Migrating Families).

The seminary is part of the series “Colloqui Newyorkesi di Cultura Scientifica Italiana Linx XXI” and has a double aim: first, to commemorate the 100th Anniversary of the earthquake of the Strait of Messina, when the US government showed great solidarity towards the victims by sending naval units in rescue mission; second, to offer an updated portrait of Italy.

The program is divided into three scientific sessions, respectively dedicated to the management of general emergencies, sanitary emergencies and preservation of the cultural heritage pieces that the catastrophe damaged.

The leitmotif of the event will be the excellence reached by our country in every aspect of emergency management. Professor Marcello Saija will offer an historical overview of the 1908 earthquake before the beginning of the sessions. At the end of the seminary, the jazz pianist from Messina Daniela Schachter will perform in a concert organized in collaboration with Kairos Italy Theater.

The Italian Academy will also host a part of the exhibition Terremoto dello Stretto di Messina, set up by the US Navy in Grand Central Station in occasion of the celebrations for Columbus Day 2008.

During the event Richard Greco, a former Undersecretary of the US Navy, will receive a decoration from the Italian government.

The Ambassador of Italy in Washington, Giovanni Castellaneta, the Permanent Representative of Italy to the United Nations Amb. Giulio Terzi di Sant’Agata, Hon. Antonio Martino, former Minister of Foreign Affairs and Defense, and the Ambassador Francesco Paolo Fulci, former Representative of Italy to the United Nations, both coming from Messina, are among those participating to the conference.

They will be joined by Mr. Guido Bertolaso, Undersecretary of the Presidency of the Council of Ministries and Head of the Department of Civil Protection, Mrs. Catherine Bragg, Assistant Secretary - General for Humanitarian Affairs and Deputy Emergency Relief Coordinator of the UN, Mrs. Caterina Bon Valsassina, Director of the Superior Institute for the Conservation and Restoration at the Ministry of Cultural Heritage and Activities, professors Roger Yurt (Presbyterian Hospital at Weill Cornell, New York), Eric Legome (St. Vincent Catholic Medical Hospital, New York) and Andy Jagoda (Mount Sinai Medical Center, New York).

Besides them - together with Agostino Miozzo, Head of the International Relations sector of the Italian Department of Civil Protection - some representatives of FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) will intervene on the theme of sanitary emergencies.
